

Although I do not live in a city covered by XM Radio Weather forecasts, I benefit from access to these stations when traveling. On trips, I can obtain advance information about weather and traffic conditions that allows me to alter my itinerary in the car. The same type of information is available on cable and satellite television.

Many truck drivers have satellite radios in their vehicles and can alter their routes to avoid bad traffic conditions or stop for the night when conditions become unsafe. This information will reduce highway congestion and improve safety.